CITY'S $54,000 BOND ISSUE TO COVER PERMANENT STREET WORK

Common Council Friday Adopted Ordinance for Issuance of Bonds to Pay for Asphalted Streets This Summer—Board of Public Works Reports What Streets Were Asphalted and the Cost of Each Street.

During the past summer the board of public works has laid asphalt pavement on various streets in the city at a total cost of $54,000. The streets which permanent improvement was made and the cost are:

Full street	$17,925 24
Memor street	20,329 77
Main and Main streets	3,188 71
Union street	19,580 69
Union street	1,965 59
Total	$54,000 00

At a special meeting of the common council held Friday evening the board of public works reported on the bonds at the request of the board

LEGION HAS EYE ON BUILDING LOT

Empowers Committee to Investigate and Buy Plot on O'Reilly Street Just Off Broadway—Club House Only Is Planned—Armistice Ball Arrangements Started.

At the meeting of Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, held Friday evening at the armory the first definite step toward the building of an American Legion home was taken when the members of the Post empowered a committee to investigate and if deemed advisable, purchase a lot 60 feet wide on O'Reilly street adjoining the first house on downtown side of the street and running back to the property now occupied by the high school. The corner lot on Broadway and O'Reilly street adjoining the high school property will probably sometime be purchased by the board of education or by the city and some suitable building erected thereon so that if the lot on O'Reilly street is purchased by the Legion they are practically assured of desirable neighbors and a building in keeping with their own proposed club house.

RECEPTION TENDERED PASTOR

A delightful reception was tendered the Rev. W. F. Hersh and Mrs. Hersh by the congregation of the Lutheran Church of the Atonement, Saugerties, on Thursday evening. The affair was held in the church parlors downstairs, and a large number of guests were present. The occasion proved to be a very happy one, the social hour and period of refreshment adding not a little to the full enjoyment of all present.

IMPROVING RESIDENCE

Melvin J. Schermerhorn is having made extensive improvements to his two family apartment house at 7 Green street. A two-story bay window is being added, also a double veranda on the front of the house, and the improvements when completed will make it one of the finest residences in that section. Haver & Brown are doing the carpenter work and Patrick Dugan the mason work.

NEW YORK FARMERS, FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS, ARE GETTING FAIR RETURNS UPON MARKETED PRODUCTS

By Telegram to The Freeman. Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 22.—While the price of milk has been above the general price level of all commodities since last April, other commodities raised on the farm have remained lower until the present time, according to the farm economists at the state college of agriculture here. Now, for the first time since 1920, the prices of New York state farm products are as high as the general price level. The dairy farmer has already begun to get a fair return with some of the big big feed which have piled up on him during the past three years. The general farmer is not likely to be greatly benefited, because the shortage of grass and the shortage of crops have so reduced the quantity of crops that he has very little to sell. Wheat is still low, but New York state farmers are not raising enough wheat to make price an important factor in agriculture. Milk will probably continue high during the next winter and spring. Wages in cities are so much higher than the wages which farmers have been able to pay that the farmer has been almost without hired labor for the past summer. A dry unfavorable growing season has resulted in poor pastures and a poor crop of silage-corn. Purchased feeds are high. These conditions do not seem to favor a large production of milk this winter. The price of cows will probably rise and remain high as long as milk is high-priced. The principal cash crops in the eastern states should bring good prices this fall. Conditions in the western grain growing states however are not as favorable. Wheat brings only a little more than the pre-war price. Oats are equally low and corn is nowhere near as high as the general price level. Potatoes are a short crop and are probably growing worse instead of better. Last year the United States raised 151 million bushels of potatoes. This year the crop is estimated at 380 million bushels. Farmers are receiving from $1.25 to $2 a bushel for potatoes now. Those who have succeeded in producing a crop will receive a good price. The hay crop in the United States is poor. In the northeastern states it is less normal. In New York it is fair. New hay is bringing a good price in New York city—from $4 to $7 above last year's price. Farmers should receive much more for their saleable hay than they did last year. The cabbage crop is suffering very much from the prolonged drought, and the price for early cabbage is unusually high. Milk, butter, chickens, wool, lamb, beans, cabbage, potatoes, hay and buckwheat will probably bring good prices this fall and winter.

FOCUS LIGHTS, SAYS HOWARD

Head of Motor Vehicle Bureau Asks This Will Alleviate Glare and Give Instructions How to Do It—Some N. Y. Lights Illegal Elsewhere.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Sept. 22.—(Special)—Robert J. Howard of Kingston, head of the motor vehicle bureau of the state tax commission, who will attend the motor vehicle conference to be held under the auspices of the commissioner of motor vehicles of New Hampshire at Lincoln, September 27, believes that the present difficulty experienced with glaring headlights can be readily alleviated by the proper focusing of such headlights. Headlights and headlight devices will be two of the principal topics for discussion at the forthcoming conference.

"All manufacturers and dealers selling cars in New York state are now equipping their cars with standard and approved headlight devices and are seeing to it that the headlights upon their cars are properly and securely adjusted and focused before the cars leave their hands," said Mr. Howard in discussing the headlight problem.

Second hand dealers in motor vehicles should not allow cars to go out of their possession until the headlights are properly focused. Police and other officers having police power, who have to do with motor vehicle traffic, can easily learn how to focus and adjust headlights," Mr. Howard points out. "If each car owner will see that his own lights are properly focused and adjusted, the menace of glaring lights from headlights will disappear from the highways and the result will be the prevention of many accidents and the saving of many lives."

Mr. Howard says that dealers and garage men should equip themselves and qualify someone in their employ to make headlight tests and that cooperation between owners and dealers will correct the glaring headlight nuisance and make night driving safe.

Here are some rules which Mr. Howard lays down and which if followed he says will bring about satisfactory results:

All motor vehicles must be equipped with two headlights with clear and bright reflectors free from rust and dirt. Both lamps and lenses must be alike: 21 candle power gas-filled bulbs only can be used.

Focus lamps in the following manner: Place the car on a level surface squarely opposite a wall or white screen twenty-five feet from it. True the lamps making them plumb and in line. Remove both lenses and turn on the lights. The centers of the light spots on the wall should be the same distance apart and the same distance from the floor as are the bulbs. When this is done, draw a horizontal line on the wall or screen through the centers of the light spots and adjust in this manner:

For devices requiring a Principal or No. 1 focus—Move the screw or other mechanism that regulates the position of the bulbs, until you get the smallest beam of light on the wall. Moving the bulb in either direction will make the beam larger.

For devices requiring No. 2 focus—Move the bulbs back in the reflector until a dark spot begins to appear in the patch of light on the wall, the light going down from the top and up from the bottom of the reflector, the rays crossing.

For devices requiring a front or No. 4 focus—Move the bulbs forward in the reflector until a dark spot begins to appear in the patch of light on the wall, the light going down from the top and up from the bottom of the reflector, the rays crossing.

For devices requiring a special focus—Follow instructions given by the manufacturers of the device.

"Individual car owners and dealers should see this is done," continues Mr. Howard, "and the menace of glaring headlights will disappear as I have stated above and there will be a saving of large sums of money and lives and property."

Mr. Howard points out that there are two classes of headlights being used legally in New York state known as Class A and Class B. He states that the Class A list contains devices which have been approved by the Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators representing the states of Connecticut, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Maine, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Maryland, New York, Vermont, Massachusetts and Ohio.

"The other class of lights," Mr. Howard adds, "are devices that have been approved for use in New York state and are legal in some of the states of the conference. In other words, if an owner is equipped with the Class B lens, his lights conform to New York state laws and he is within the law in New York state, yet he may be arrested if he travels in any one of the other states of the conference."

Other additions to the Class A list are expected to be added as the result of the forthcoming Motor Vehicle Conference to be held at Lincoln. Mr. Howard says that the motor vehicle bureau will publish a list of lights and lighting devices for the enlightenment of car owners, which conform with the New York State Motor Vehicle law.

OKLAHOMA AWAITS NEXT WEDNESDAY

When Legislature Will Attempt to Meet to Impeach Governor Whose Troops Guard Capitol—Governor Has Big Bodyguard.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 22.—The all absorbing question in Oklahoma City today was: "What will happen next Wednesday noon?" Possibility of violence when the legislature attempts to convene at that time for the avowed purpose of impeaching Governor Walton was minimized today, although both sides in Oklahoma's bitterest political conflict the situation was fraught with danger.

"There will be no session of the legislature," Governor Walton reiterated. "There will be no unlawful Klan assembly."

Yet trains arriving in Oklahoma City brought state legislators who came to attend the called session. Many insisted they were not Klansmen. They went at once to the Skirvin Hotel where within a smoke filled suite the anti-Waltonites discuss with warmth their intention to meet, no matter what happens.

"If the governor wants to arrest us or shoot us, he will make considerable history," one prominent legislator asserted.

W. D. McFee of Duncan, leader of the legislative movement against Walton and Representative W. T. Cunningham of Sapulpa said it would be brought about by "Mad Jack's" bodyguard, not the military.

Walton's bodyguard is the subject of the most bitter tirades. The governor has an armed, personal bodyguard of at the fewest 20 men. Some say there are as many as 130, as does Colonel Zach Mulsall, one of the two really picturesque figures in the bodyguard.

The other is "Buck" Garrett, famous two-gun man, nationally known as the former sheriff of Carter county. Garrett figured prominently as a bodyguard in the Clara Smith Hamilton murder trial at Ardmore. He is six feet, two inches tall and weighs well over 200 pounds.

Mulsall once was a crack cowboy and for a long time was connected with the 101 Ranch circo. He is a gray-haired man now with a large gray sombrero and a Buffalo Bill beard.

"Jack" Walton has an army of men "ready to go to the limit for him." It is related that the governor has granted hundreds—perhaps thousands of special police permits.

Walton alleges that sixty-eight out of the 110 members of the state legislature "are members of the Ku Klux Klan."

"Therefore," he asserts, the impending session is "an outlaw Klan assembly."

"What is the situation in the senate?" the governor was asked.

"I should say that 51 per cent of the senate are members of the Klan," he replied.

The governor said he was receiving messages of congratulation on fight against Oklahoma from all over the United States. He expressed satisfaction over the way the military court is making progress, culminating in the arrest of Grand Dragon Jewett. Jewett entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned last night and was released on $1,000 bond.

The alleged flogging of E. R. Merriman, in which Jewett is accused of taking part, took place on March 7, 1922.

Merriman said to be a driver of a laundry wagon was reported to have been friendly with a married woman, which he denied. He left Oklahoma City shortly after the alleged whipping party.

Jewett's arrest was the first here, resulting from the military court investigation. Other arrests are expected.

The arrests of three men as alleged floggers at Shawnee were the first there as a consequence of the Klan whipping investigation being conducted here. These arrests were: Ernest Brundage, of Oklahoma City, employee of a produce concern; Louis Shull, manager of a Shawnee commercial telegraph company, and Lafayette Evans, of Shawnee. They were accused of flogging I. C. Sowers, an insurance man on the night of June 21, 1922.

REPORT ARREST OF ONE OF TELLINE'S ASSASSINS

By Telegram to The Freeman. Rome, Sept. 22.—A man has been arrested on the Greek-Albanian frontier who confessed being one of the assassins of General Tellini and four other Italians connected with the Allied boundary commission, according to information from Epirus today. His name was given as Jarelli, but his nationality was not mentioned.

The bodies of the five slain Italians were due here this afternoon from Preveza.

The Duke of Acosta was delegated to represent the king at the ceremonies of arrival. The whole cabinet attended Mass during the morning for the victims.

BUS OWNERS FORM ORGANIZATION WITH SPINNEWEBER AS PRESIDENT

At a Meeting Friday of Common Council Bus Committee With Bus Owners Various Matters Are Talked Of and Bus Men Organize—Central Terminal to Have Caretaker and Telephone.

Probably for the first time in the history of the city the members of Kingston's board of aldermen vacated the common council chamber at the city hall Friday evening to allow the autobus owners in this vicinity to get together and effect a permanent organization, and as a result the Autobus Owners' Association came into existence with Fred J. Spinneweber, president; Jesse Van Kleeck, secretary; and Ernest J. Ritch, treasurer. The name of the association may be changed later, but it is expected that the new organization will have enrolled as a member every bus line owner and member entering and leaving Kingston.

The organization of the bus owners was the outcome of the suggestion of Alderman William B. Martin, chairman of the bus committee, who had called the common council, who had called a meeting of the aldermen to discuss a proposed new bus ordinance.

Alderman Martin, in opening the meeting, stated that Chief of Police J. Allan Wood was anxious for the council to adopt a bus ordinance, and it was held to receive suggestions from the bus line men and also members of the common council.

These suggestions will be turned over to Corporation Counsel Walter G. Gill, who is to draft the proposed ordinance. Before it is adopted, the other meeting of the aldermen, the bus owners and the chief of police will be held to discuss its provisions.

Those Present at Hearing. All of the aldermen were present at the meeting with the exception of Aldermen Williams and Everett. The bus owners represented were Klemm & Huber of the Saugerties line; Ritch & Wortman of the Bine-water and the Saugerties line; Henry Myers of the Port Ewen line; Martin Jordan of the New Paltz line; Van Kleeck & Van Kleeck of the Ellenville line; Earl Schoonmaker of the Woodstock line, and Lynch & Ghyss of the Lawrenceville line. Corporation Counsel Gill was also present.

Spinneweber's Suggestion. Mr. Spinneweber of the Port Ewen line called attention to the Strand terminal and said that traffic was so congested on that street that it was difficult for the busses to draw up to the terminal, and he would suggest that a certain space in front of the terminal be kept clear for the use of the busses only. He also called attention to the fact that the Strand cannot be returned to the Strand street, and through West Union street, and that the children used the Wilburts pavement as a playground to roller skate and play ball, which made it an exceedingly dangerous street to run the busses through. He believed that something should be done to keep children off the street and on the sidewalks before there was a fatality.

Suggested a 10 Cent Fare. Mr. Ritch suggested that a 10 cent fare be allowed instead of the present 15 cents for those who just wanted to ride in the busses to their homes near the city limits.

It was brought out that the railroad law required a fare of 15 cents to be charged so that the bus lines would not compete with the trolley road.

Picking Up Passengers. Alderman Martin said that some of the bus men to discuss the status of the strike, to decide whether they will return to work, under the terms of the new contract. They have been warned by Berry that, irrespective of their decision, the International union will carry out its contract with the publishers.

The new contract gives pressmen higher wages and shorter working hours.

ELECTRIC CONDEMNATION COMMISSION ADJOURNS The commission appointed to hear testimony in condemnation proceedings brought by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company to secure a right of way for a transmission line across certain property in the lower part of the county, has taken an adjournment until October 5. The company seeks the right to erect a power line over certain property in the vicinity of Gardiner, Modena and in to East Walden. At the time the commission organized an adjournment was taken until Friday, September 21, when testimony was to be taken. An adjournment was taken later until October 3.

N. Y. Publishers Sign Agreement With International Pressmen's Union; Fewer Hours and More Wages

New York Local Given Until Sunday Afternoon to Accept—If Not, It Will Be Ignored.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Sept. 22.—"We expect to be back almost to normalcy by the early part of next week," Lester L. Jones, executive representative of the Publishers Association, said today following announcement that the strike of 2,500 newspaper web pressmen was "ended."

Publishers and representatives of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants Union of North America, have signed a contract said by George L. Berry, head of the union, to be "the best ever." As a result, the strike last Monday night, called the strike last entirely as free agents. Their local is no longer recognized. Publishers will deal solely with the International union hereafter.

The regular composite edition of morning papers was issued today. Tomorrow, Jones said, newspapers will be in all probability print an eight page main sheet and will add to it such Sunday supplements as they can run off in their own shops.

There are plenty of pressmen now available, Jones said. Publishers, however, are feeling their way, determined to fall into no errors in their efforts to straighten out the situation.

The striking "outlaw" pressmen have until tomorrow afternoon when they meet to discuss the status of the strike, to decide whether they will return to work, under the terms of the new contract. They have been warned by Berry that, irrespective of their decision, the International union will carry out its contract with the publishers.

The new contract gives pressmen higher wages and shorter working hours.

A Balloon Dance. There will be a novelty balloon dance this evening at the White Eagle Hall, on Delaware avenue. This is the first big dance of the season. The music by Lane's orchestra.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE DUCKS

"Quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"Quack, quack," said Sir David Duck.

"Quack, quack," said the little ducklings.

"Now you know how you must sleep, don't you, precious ducklings?" asked Mrs. Duck.

"Yes, Mother Duck," answered the little ducklings. "Yes, quack, quack, we know."

"And we will show you, Mother Duck, so you will see that we know."

"That is right, quack, quack," said Mother Duck.

"That is right, quack, quack," said Sir David Duck.

So the little ducklings showed Mrs. Duck and Sir David Duck and all the other ducks how they would be able to sleep in the water, which was what Mother Duck wanted to know.

They showed her how they would hold one foot up under them and with the other they would keep their same position in the water.

That is, they would paddle with that one foot even as they slept—it was very simple and easy to do after a short time and they would keep in the same place that way. Of course on the farm they could not go far.

But it was well to learn all duck lessons, for if ever they should be sleeping in the open—in a large body of water—then they would need to know this lesson.

"Quack, quack," said Mother Duck, "you all know your lesson well, and it delights Mother Duck's heart."

"You do, indeed, know your lesson well," said Sir David Duck. "You are good, bright ducks. No one could complain of you."

"I should say not," said Mother Duck. "No brighter ducklings ever lived."

"Every time I see you wobble I think of how beautiful you are."

"Ah yes, you're mother's beautiful ducklings. And though some may say you're not beautiful, I think you are.

"Mother's Beautiful Ducklings."

"And that is all that I care about. What do I care what some other creature thinks? I don't have to carry their thoughts about with me."

"I have my own thoughts, and my own thoughts tell me that you are beautiful."

"And these thoughts of mine are what I keep with me. Yes, quack, quack, my ducklings are very beautiful."

"You are smart, too. I'm indeed proud to think how you have learned the lesson of sleeping in the water so as to keep in the same place even as you sleep."

"I am proud to think of how very, very quickly you have learned this lesson."

And Mother Duck looked very proud and happy. Sometimes she was called Mother Duck and sometimes Mrs. Duck. Of course Mrs. Duck was what she had been called but she quacked so proudly about the beauty and the brightness of her children that most of the barnyard creatures, as well as her own ducklings, began calling her Mother Duck, too.

"Grunt, grunt," said Sammy Sausage, "you may think you're very bright and a very good mother, and that your children are very bright and very good children, but I think all of you are absurd."

"Quack, quack, what in the world, or the barnyard, do you mean?" asked Mrs. Duck.

"I cannot understand it. Not for a moment can I understand your strange speech."

"Well, I suppose if you understood it for a moment you would be able to understand it for a longer time, too," said Sammy.

"I will explain to you, however. I do not think you're bright and I do not think you're a good mother. Neither do I think your children are bright, nor do I think they're such good children."

"I should think you'd teach them that the most important thing in the world is food and that the brightest thing a creature can do is to grab all they can."

"And if the children were bright of their own accord they would be practicing such lessons instead of the absurd one you've just taught them."

"Quack, quack," said Mother Duck. "I'll have you know, Sammy, that I do not teach my children to be pigs. I teach them to be ducks, and ducks they are, I'm thankful to say."

"You poor duck, how foolish you are," grunted Sammy. "But I am glad that there are people with little sense—it leaves more food about for those who think of it appreciatively."

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

A substantial and tasty dish for a hurried meal is the following:

Hot Beef Sandwich.—Heat gravy from the roast and in this lay a slice or two of thinly-sliced roast; when heated, lay it on a slice of buttered bread and cover it with another slice. Pour the hot gravy over the bread and serve at once.

Tomato Toast With Bacon.—Prepare the toast and place on a hot plate. In the frying pan cook three or four strips of bacon until crisp. Put some of the hot fat over the toast and the bacon at the side of the plate. In the frying pan heat a cupful or less of tomato or two-thirds of a cupful of tomato soup. Season well and pour over the toast. Lay the strips of bacon on top and serve at once. Egg may be scrambled in the bacon fat and put on the toast for variety.

Fillets of Fish With Potatoes.—Wipe fillets of fish, brush with butter, salt and pepper and lay in a baking dish. Surround with boiled potatoes, cover with a white sauce and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

Vanilla Ice Cream With Pears.—On a slice of brick ice cream lay half of a preserved pear. Pour over it a sauce that has been colored pink with cinnamon candies. Decorate the pear with browned almonds and serve at once.

When putting up the sweet cucumber pickles this fall, stamp them with a doughnut cutter or cut in rings. Then proceed to prepare them as usual. They are much more attractive and just as easy to get ready. Peel them, cut into slices, then cut with a biscuit cutter and stamp out the center with a small cutter, taking out all the seeds.

Apple Cocktail.—Cut peeled apples with a potato scoop into balls, cook until tender in syrup, adding lemon rind and juice. Serve with muskmelon balls, maraschino cherries, grapes or pineapple. The combination may be suited to what one has on hand.

Removing the Cause of Colds

Weekly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D's. C.

Improper elimination of waste matter puts the body in a run-down condition, permitting a cold to develop in the system. The cold may express itself in catarrh of the head, in tonsillitis, in sore throat, in bronchitis, or if not checked in time, it may become influenza or pneumonia.

So a cold means many things to many people, but its cause, no matter in what form it may express itself, is a spinal displacement, causing under-activity of the eliminative organs. If the liver is weak, it throws more work on the skin, kidneys and lungs, and so it goes. Whichever eliminative organ is weakened, it overworks the others. If two or all of them are weakened, and they sometimes break down under the overwork, then pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis, or other extreme diseases may result. The extraordinary record of recoveries in these diseases from chiropractic spinal adjustments is based on the fact that the cause is reached, and Nature, when given a fair chance, has more than enough reserve strength to eliminate disease. The chiropractic spinal adjustments release the normal degree of nerve force into the weakened organs, and Nature's reserve forces are given a chance.

OUT IN THREE DAYS

"I was taken with a cold Sunday night. My nose stopped up, my throat was sore, my head ached, and I had some fever. I started chiropractic spinal adjustments on Monday. The fever and headache disappeared, my bowels came back to normal, and my head began to clear. On Tuesday I got up. On Wednesday I could swallow again, the soreness in the throat was gone. I never got rid of a bad cold so quickly before."—Lorene Carr, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 13331.

SIXTY FOUR PER CENT DIE IN POVERTY, SURVEY SHOWS

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

Out of 100 average white male adults, nine leave estates which will produce $50 a month or more at 6 per cent net; 27 leave estates which will produce an average of $20 a month at 6 per cent net; and 64 leave little or nothing.

more or less dependent on others for financial success. These facts should serve the purpose of a timely warning to the millions of Americans who today are in the full enjoyment of health and prosperity.

These figures were obtained as the result of a survey made by Mr. Joseph J. Devney, economist and author of "Devney's Economic Table," among 20,000 adults throughout the United States. Assistance was given the compiler by 1,000 bankers and life insurance men. The reports showed the age of the deceased, occupation, net estate and life insurance. More than one year was taken up by Mr. Devney's investigations, and the final results of his intensely interesting studies have but recently been made public.

Similar investigations have been made in this country from time to time and all have resulted in about the same general indications. Statistics, of course, have varied at different periods and in different parts of the country, but they have never varied on the one outstanding point that the closing years of the lives of many of our citizens has found them

The rules of life do not vary greatly. The 64 adults referred to in Mr. Devney's report were no less prosperous than 64 out of 100 average men today. This is the thought that no individual can escape. It is true that more and more our people are appreciating the value of thrift; savings are growing in our banks; our list of home owners is increasing; thrift is rapidly finding its way into the curricula of our schools.

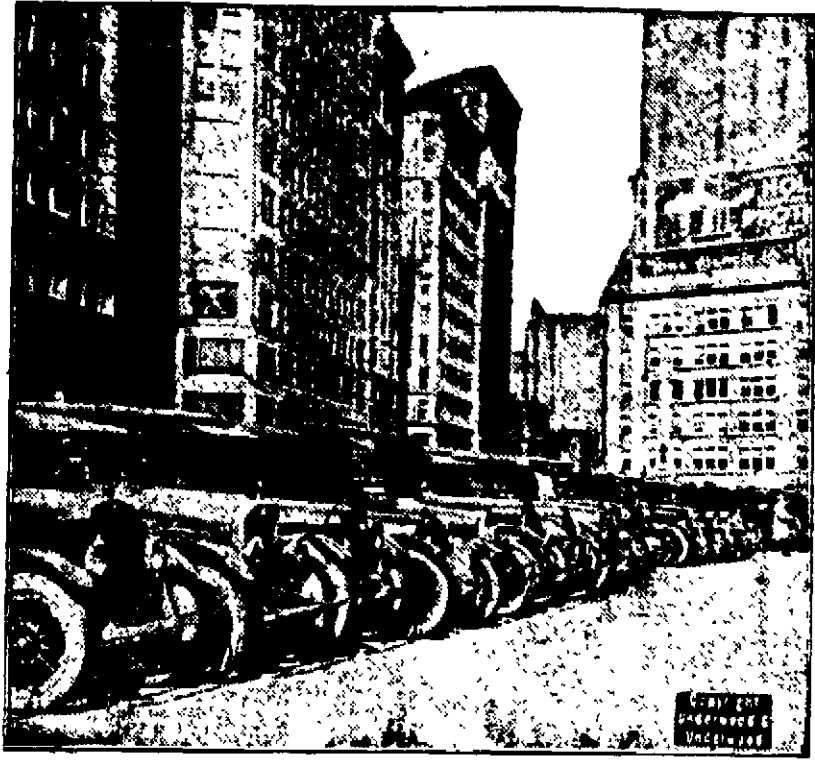

But the actual conditions show that all too few of our people are able to hold on to the wealth they have helped to create.

It becomes a matter for each individual to study closely the situation that confronts him personally.

While you are able to earn and save, do so.

Make the resolve that, under no circumstances whatever, will you ever become one of the 64 per cent who leave little or nothing to show for a whole life's work.

PARKING SPACES FOR NEW YORK

What would New York motorists do if it weren't for Broadway? The famous thoroughfare, cutting diagonally across Manhattan, makes room for half a dozen excellent parking spaces at its intersection with the more important of the avenues. Here, for instance, is the parking space at Madison Square, where Broadway cuts across Fifth Avenue.

RIGHT STEERING MOST NEGLECTED

Many Accidents Caused by Inability of Driver to Turn Wheels Rapidly.

(By ERWIN GREER, President of Green College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago)

It usually has been the rule to jolly the person who devoted long hours to learn driving under an instructor. This practice of "jolling" is one that human nature succumbs to; hence the individual starts out alone on the congested highway, underestimating the need for proper knowledge, and joins the ranks of our careless, maniac drivers, endangering not only themselves, but the lives and property of others. The more knowledge of how to start and stop a car serves only as preliminary training. It is from this point that the greatest care should be exercised, to learn the proper way to handle your car at all times.

Steering Most Neglected. Probably the most neglected part in the training of drivers is that of steering. A great number of accidents are caused through inability to turn the wheels rapidly enough in either direction, at the same time signaling to the oncoming traffic, as to what course you intend taking.

Assume you are driving a left drive car. In making a right-hand turn, the left arm is extended up and out, as a signal, at least 75 feet prior to the corner. (This applies to all signals, except in emergencies.) The wheel should be grasped high, with the right hand, and turned to the right, as the corner is reached—the speed of the car being lessened at the same time. The left hand should remain at the signal position until the corner is rounded, then it falls high on the wheel, and straightens out the course of your car, then right-hand relinquishing its hold when the left hand takes control.

This method completes your turn in two movements, whereas the ordinary way of using both hands, after a hurried signal, taking two or three holds on the wheel to accomplish a turn, never allows you full confidence of control and makes more work for the driver.

Left Turn Signal. For the left turn the signal is that the left arm shall be extended straight out and held there until the car has taken its complete turn. This time the right hand is crossed over and under the wheel and pulled down to the left as the corner is reached. To straighten out the course of your car following a left turn, let go of the wheel and take a new grip and pull down to the right, as in right-hand turn. Note that the left hand plays no part in a left turn, except as a signal, yet you have perfect control of your car.

Steering is a knack, not built strength. Once acquired and your driving pleasure increases greatly.

In downtown traffic, cars should be guided with the right hand, keeping the left ready for immediate use as a signal. Remember that you can do nothing with two hands on the steering wheel that cannot be accomplished with one, thereby leaving the other in reserve as a signal. Try these suggestions out and it may aid you greatly, regardless of your past experience.

ALUMINUM PISTONS ON CARS

Makers Claim Lightweight Causes Less Vibration and Less Wear on Bearings.

Many of the lighter-weight cars employ aluminum pistons, the makers claiming that the lighter-weight piston causes less vibration and consequently less friction and wear on bearings and wristpins. Owing to the fact that the piston of this metal expands more than the cast-iron piston, the former must be fitted less tightly in the cylinder than the latter.

CLEANING OF TIRES IS IMPORTANT TASK

Should Be Done Every 2,500 Miles.

Wise motorists, after driving a new car about 500 miles, drain the oil from the crank shaft case, give it a thorough cleaning and refill with fresh oil. This operation should be repeated at least every additional thousand miles during the life of the car. It is of great importance in prolonging the life of the car in that it keeps the motor free from particles of dirt, metal, sediment and other foreign substances which find their way into the inner workings.

Similar treatment should be accorded tires for the same general reasons in order that they may deliver all of the mileage which has been built into them at the factory. At the end of every 2,500 miles of service a tire should be removed from the rim, deflated and all soapstone and grit removed. The inside of the casing should be washed with clean gasoline and after drying should be dusted with talc.

During this operation a close inspection should be made of the tread and the inside of the casing for any cuts or fragments of glass or other foreign materials, according to tire experts. The rims should be cleaned of all rust and paint. Rust on the rims leads to quick deterioration if it works its way around or through the flap.

occurrence. Each consists of a stout wooden prop, of 1 x 2-inch material, a leather strap, nailed to the door, and a cleat nailed below the strap. In use, the prop is set under the cleat so that pressure applied to the other side of the door cannot close it. When the doors are closed the ends of the props are set behind brackets provided for this purpose; or simply rested on the frame.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

MINOR MERIWETHER

PILOT-VICE
TULSA, OKLAHOMA

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 14, 1923.

Dr. Edwin DeBerry
P. O. Box 508.
Norman, Oklahoma.

My dear Doctor:

Please find enclosed $20.00. Klostaken and one year's dues as a member of the Imperial Klan for John (Jack) Galloway Walton, Governor of Oklahoma.

This work was pulled by Dr. W. T. Tilly of Muskogee, Klan Giant and Great Kliff of this province, and is one of the best pieces of work that has been pulled by a Klansman in the history of the state.

Dr. Tilly made a special trip from Muskogee to Oklahoma City and gave the Governor the work, on my request and with your consent. I recommend that inasmuch as Dr. Tilly has pulled this work, which has been extremely hazardous, that you should recommend him for a life membership.

Please have the Imperial Palace send to me personally the Imperial Passport and case for Governor Walton, that I may have same delivered to him. It is necessary that this matter be kept absolutely secret, and if the passport were to be mailed to the Governor, or to you, it might get into the wrong hands.

Governor Walton does not want anyone, not even Earl, to know of this. I believe it wise for you not to approach him in any way for the present. Two new members of the University Board are being considered.

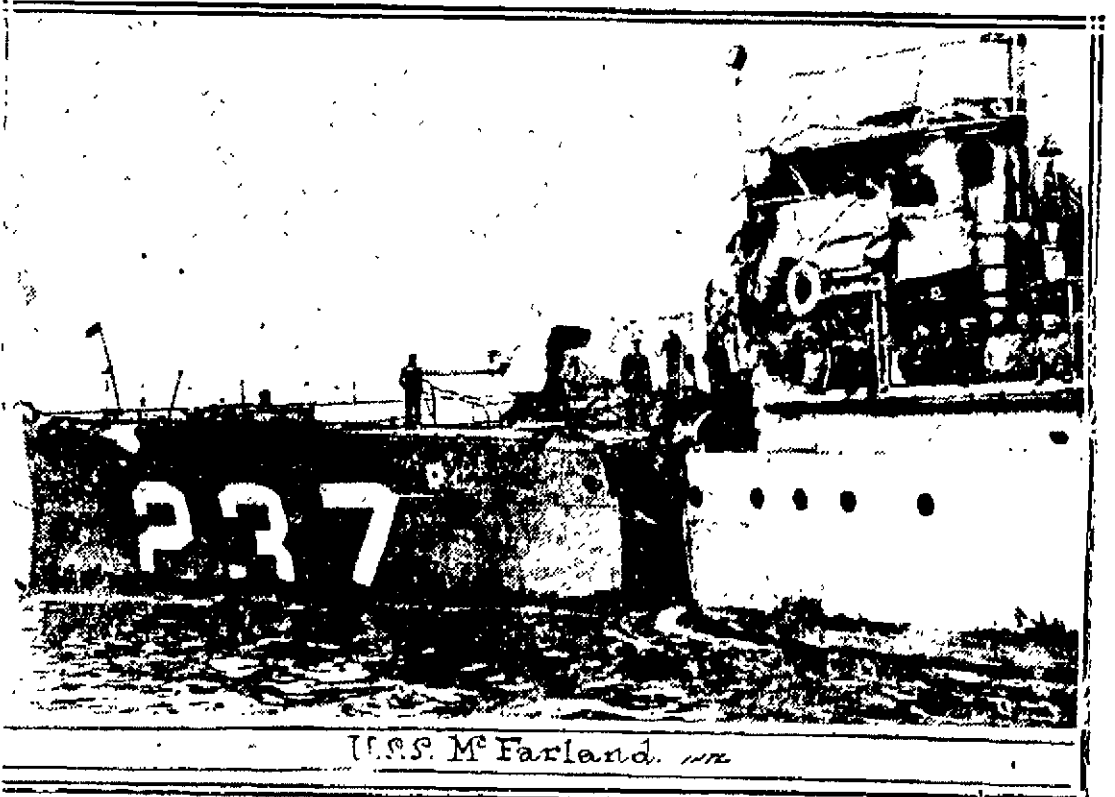

With kindest personal regards and best wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours I.T.S.D.S.

Minor Meriwether

Great Titan, Province #3,
Realm of Oklahoma.

Here is an alleged Ku Klux Klan letter, signed "Minor Meriwether, Grand Titan, Province No. 3, Realm of Oklahoma," which purports to show that Governor Jack Walton, who has declared martial law in the state in his fight on the Klan, is really a member of the Knights of the Nighties. Governor Walton indignantly denied that he ever joined the order and offered a reward of $1,000 to anyone who could prove he ever became a member of the Klan.

The number of serious accidents that have lately shocked the United States Navy has been added to by the collision between the superdreadnought Arkansas and the destroyer McFarland, which occurred during night maneuvers of the black fleet in Cape Cod Bay. The destroyer, almost cut in half, was escorted into Boston by the transport Sturtevant. One man was killed.

SCIENCE IN INDUSTRIAL ERA

Utilitarianism, It Seems, Must Ultimately Kill the Pure Desire for Knowledge.

Wireless is of great practical importance. It facilitates slaughter in war, the dissemination of journalistic falsehood in time of peace, and the broadcasting of rivalries to relieve the tedium of evening hours not devoted to success. But the men who made it possible—Faraday, Maxwell and Hertz—were none of them the least interested in furthering this remarkable enrichment of human life; they were men solely interested in trying to understand physical processes, and it can hardly be said that the existence of industrialism helped them even indirectly. The modern study of the structure of the atom may have a profound effect upon industrial processes, but those who are engaged upon it are very little interested in this possible future effect of their work. It seems likely that the utilitarianism of commercial industry must ultimately kill the pure desire for knowledge just as it kills the very analogous artistic impulse. In America, where the more utilitarian aspects of science are keenly appreciated, no great advance in pure theory has been made. None of the fundamental discoveries upon which practical applications depend have been made in America. It seems probable that, as the point of view appropriate to commercial industry spreads, utilitarianism will make such fundamental discoveries more and more rare, until at last those who love knowledge for its own sake come to be classified in youth as "morons" and kept in institutions for harmless lunatics.—The Dial.

SIAM'S KING VISITS TEMPLES

He Spends Two Weeks Each Year Worshipping at the Buddhist Shrines of Bangkok.

Each year when the rainy season is over, the king of Siam spends about two weeks making his customary round of visits to the different Buddhist temples of Bangkok. On these occasions the king goes in a boat, manned by 60 rowers on each side, each clad in a uniform of red, and using a long oar. The royal boat is towed by the stern, and the king sits in the stern, and the rowers pull the oars.

ART TRULY IS A LANGUAGE

Bears a Lesson and Charm for Even Those Not Versed in Its Rules.

Art, in its broad and permanent meaning, is a language—the language of sentiment, of character, of national impulse, of individual genius; and for this reason it bears a lesson, a charm, or a sanction to all—even those least versed in its rules and least alive to its special triumphs. Sir Walter Scott was no amateur, yet, through his reverence for ancestry and his local attachments, portraiture and architecture had for him a romantic interest. Sydney Smith was impatient of galleries when he could talk with men and women, and made a practical joke of buying pictures; yet Newton and Leslie elicited his best humor. Talfourd cared little and knew less of the treasures of the Louvre, but lingered there because it had been his friend Hazlitt's Elysium. Indeed, there are constantly blended associations in the history of English authors and artists; Reynolds is identified with Johnson and Goldsmith, Smibert with Berkeley, Barry with Burke, Constable and Wilkie with Sir George Beaumont, Haydon with Wordsworth, Leslie with Irving; the painters depict their friends of the pen, the latter celebrate in verse or prose the artist's triumphs, and both intermingle thought and sympathy; and from this contact of select intelligences of diverse vocation has resulted the choicest wit and the most genial companionship.—Henry T. Tuckerman.

"No, I ain't sick, Mose," said Harrison.

There was a moment's silence, during which the caller gazed wide eyed at the rocking figure.

"Den," continued Mose, "why does yo' rock yo'self dat way all de time?" Harrison explained:

"To 'know Bill Blott? Well, he sold me a silver watch cheap, an' if I stops moving like dis, dat watch don't go."—Tid Bits.

W. D. Stokes and Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes

The prolonged and bitter divorce litigation between W. D. Stokes, New York multi-millionaire hotel owner and sportsman, who a few years ago was the victim of the "shooting show girls," and his wife, a former Denver (Colo.) belle, reached a climax when Mrs. Stokes asked State's Attorney Crowe of Chicago for the indictment of a score of persons. She charges they have furnished her husband with false affidavits that she was the "Helen Norcross," who, twelve years ago, was an inmate of the notorious Everleigh Club of Chicago. She asks prosecution for perjury and conspiracy. Minnie Everleigh, in Paris, has sworn that Mrs. Stokes was not "Helen Norcross." In his original divorce suit, Stokes named his own son as a co-respondent, but later withdrew the allegation. Mrs. Stokes is his second wife. She was completely exonerated in the original suit, but the trial judge died before the papers were signed, and the case must be tried again.

Frank J. Gould and Edith Kelly Gould

Frank J. Gould, millionaire son of the late Jay Gould, has asked Paris courts to grant an injunction to prevent his divorced wife, Edith Kelly Gould, from using the name "Gould" upon billboards, or in any other way to advertise her stage career. Mrs. Gould, when she signed a contract to reappear as a dancer at the Alhambra, in Paris, said she would not live on the sum allowed by her divorced husband. She was a prominent dancer on the American stage when she married Frank Gould.

SCHOOL BANK DEPOSITS.

It is interesting to learn that during the past year $9,500,000 has been deposited in the school banks that have been established with a view to encourage thrift in American children. The originators of these institutions are well pleased, but their satisfaction is not shared by critics of the undertaking, who contend that "child nature has been unduly coerced" and that permanent harm may have been done. Instead of spending their pennies for the things they really value, it is argued, boys and girls get out of the bank scheme merely an entry in a little blank book which can not give them any pleasure. And further: "In adults thrift is admirable, but in the young it is unnatural. The saving habit may turn into the vice of miserliness, and it is not quite true that, as Poor Richard said, a penny saved is a penny earned. It is a penny saved and nothing else. Earning is a different matter, implying energy, skill of some sort, and an element of that most precious thing, the spirit of adventure."

There is a measure of truth in all this, but it is well to remember that the school bank is not a great deal more than an extension of the home banking plan which many parents have long encouraged. It is also well to reflect that in both cases misers may result, or merely good habits of thrift, the difference largely depending on the boy himself or the girl. Perhaps the school bank is less to be feared as a means of producing future misers than as one of the many modern developments in school life which tend to make children old before their time, forcing them too rapidly out of the states of childhood and youth, full terms of which are needed as a basis for the quality and character of the after man or woman.

BUILDING ON THE RUINS.

Men are like ants, beginning to rebuild immediately after their constructions have been torn up. Japan did not wait for the world's helping hand which was so generously extended. She is reported to be as prompt as Chicago was after the great fire 52 years ago, and as San Francisco was after the disastrous earthquake 17 years ago, in attacking the ruins and clearing the ground. The new construction thus already begun may prove to be less picturesque than the old, but will probably be better adapted to the uses of modern industry as well as better able to withstand the earthquakes of the future. The talk of Japan's loss of her position as a first-class power was hasty. After all, her population has not been greatly depleted, and, though the repair of the damage from earthquake, fire and flood will be enormous in cost, she will manage to endure the strain upon her resources.

And all the work will not be required of the Japanese themselves, for nature strives to repair her own ravages. Nature assisted even in the restoration of devastated France, nourishing the wheat and the flowers which soon covered the war-scarred land; and the blossoming of gardens will outrun or keep pace with the toil of the industrious Japanese builders. Surprisingly rapid is the healing of the physical scars, both of wars and the earth's convulsions when man and nature work together. Ruined Chicago was practically restored within two years, and when an equal length of time has passed there will be little left in either Tokio or Yokohama to remind the observer of what has been rated as the most destructive earthquake of history.

According to the raw food promoters in convention, "if human beings would only eat half a peck of raw onions a week doctors would have to go out of business." And "society" would have to shut up shop even if business would not be entirely crippled in consequence of every man's need of isolation after consuming his half peck.

By unanimous vote of both houses of the Philippine legislature the recall of Governor General Wood is demanded. But those familiar with the situation place entire responsibility on the president of the senate and the speaker of the house, both of whom are ambitious for power and wish to have a governor general more susceptible to their influence. General Wood's record in the army, as governor general of Cuba, and as a military commander in the Philippines has won the confidence of Americans. They are not likely to be led astray by Filipinos who seek to exploit the islands in their own way free from American restrictions.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. What is the age of a turtle's life?
2. Are white elephants really white?
3. Can you get house wrens to nest in a neighborhood where there are English sparrows?

Answers in Monday's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. If there are lizards that are same shape as snakes, how can you tell which is which?
For one thing, lizards have eyelids, which snakes do not. Also if you dissect the head of both reptiles you will find the snake's lower jaw in two bony parts, connected by a ligament in the middle of the front. The lizard's lower jaw bone is in one piece.

2. Why do oysters and such creatures live in shallow water?

Probably because they get more to eat in such waters. Molluscs feed on minute forms of plant life that flourish best in shallow water; and the plants in their turn grow freely there because they feed on mineral elements brought to waters near shore by streams emptying there. Shallow water is milder in temperature than deep water, and this, too, helps both plants and molluscs. The latter do not breed unless temperature and saltness suit.

3. Do woodpeckers dig into live wood?

I fear arguments both ways. Why don't you find more trace of their holes in live trees? They do occasionally go into live wood, as much as 4 to 5 inches if necessary in pursuing borers. But if the tree is healthy, as soon as the borer is removed, the tree tissues start filling up this hole, and in time it disappears. Such holes as are in vigorous trees are ordinarily not far under the bark or the wood, and the superficial drilling the bird makes is easily healed.

POULTRY

Corn Is Probably Best Single Fattening Food

Any rations compounded of such fattening foods as corn, oats, buckwheat, barley and wheat will give good results in poultry fattening. Corn is probably the best single fattening food, but gives better results when combined with other grains. Under farm conditions the simple rations will usually give the most satisfactory results, as they are easily mixed and handled.

Since the finishing ration is essentially a fattening ration, fattening foods should be supplied. Cornmeal and milk or beef scraps are usually used as their base. A ration composed of six parts cornmeal, one part beef scrap and four parts middlings is very satisfactory for fattening. By its use about one and one-half pounds have been added to roasters in two weeks.

In range fattening the ration is largely grain. Usually corn is used, not because of better gains secured, but because it is inconvenient to feed a wet mash to birds having the liberty of the barn. Fattening rations should be fed wet, preferably moistened with sour milk, since milk gives excellent results. The ground feeds should be used as far as possible. Experiments show that they are superior to grains produced to whole grains.

In the case of pen feeding, corn moistened with water or sour milk is often used to supplement the ration.

Home-Grown Feeds Best for Production of Eggs

Commercial chicken feeds to stimulate egg production are not used by the majority of the leading poultrymen of Iowa. That fact was brought out in the recent survey made by the poultry extension men of Iowa state college.

A questionnaire was sent out to the leading poultrymen of the state and 57 reports were received. Of these 57, there were 34 who had never used commercial feeds for stimulating egg production. Of the 23 who had used commercial feeds, 11 stated that they believed the feeds were valuable and the other 12 stated that the feeds were not beneficial.

The Iowa poultry department at Ames recommends the following: Scratch feed: 2 parts corn, 1 part of wheat and 1 of oats. Dry mash: 1 part ground corn, 2 parts ground oats, 1 part gluten, 3/4 tankage. Sour milk or buttermilk could take the place of tankage.

Green feeds, as cabbage, sprouted oats, steamed alfalfa hay are beneficial. Fresh, clean water is essential. Gravel or crushed stone are necessary for grit. Oyster shell supplies the hen with material needed to form egg shells.

Many Young Chicks Die Every Year From Gapes

Many thousand young chicks die every year from gapes. The disease is caused by a parasite worm which attaches itself to the walls of the windpipe. This worm is sometimes called the forked worm by reason of the fact that the male and female are so firmly united that at first glance they have the appearance of one worm with two heads. The worms suck blood from the mucous membrane, thus weakening the chick. They also clog the windpipe, which interferes with breathing.

The first symptoms of the disease are coughing and sneezing. Soon the chicks begin to gape, plainly showing that they are unable to get sufficient air. Gapes spread rapidly. The female in the windpipe develops a large number of eggs, which are coughed up by the chick, or else are swallowed, passing through the intestines and being voided with the droppings. In its efforts to rid itself of the obstruction in its windpipe, the chick often coughs up live worms.

Difficult to Eradicate Tuberculosis in Flock

Tuberculosis in fowls can be eliminated only by disposing of the infected stock. Treatment is impractical and of no value in the control of the disease. To eradicate the disease:

1. Replace the entire flock as soon as possible with healthy birds raised on uninfected ground.
2. Kill and burn all birds showing symptoms of tuberculosis.
3. Put dropping boards in poultry houses and keep them clean.
4. Get plenty of fresh air and light into the poultry house.
5. Get rid of old fowls.
6. Burn and bury deep all dead birds.
7. Plow up and sow down land when practical.

Good feeding helps in making a greater hatch, with fewer weak chicks.

Rations for baby chicks should contain nutrients necessary to furnish both heat and energy and to manufacture bone and muscle.

POULTRY ASS'N MAKES PROGRAM

The Rondout Valley Cooperative Poultry Association at Accord, which has marketed the eggs of its members cooperatively for nearly a year, has just passed the withdrawal period when its members have the opportunity to cancel their marketing contract with the association, and again return to the individual sale of their eggs.

As was expected some members withdrew for various reasons, but the great majority remained loyal to the association and to the idea that collectively there was more hope of a satisfactory marketing system. These withdrawals, however, will in no wise affect the efficient conduct of the business nor is any increase in deductions for overhead expenses anticipated.

During the last ten months the association has done a gross business of approximately $80,000 at a cost, during the past seven months of 2 cents per dozen and at the same time built up a conservative reserve. It has established its trade name of "Guaranteed Rondout Valley Eggs" in the New York markets and elsewhere, so that today practically all of its products find their way into a direct private and retail trade.

The management has devised a system of accounting and collections which makes possible prompt weekly returns to the members and the prospects of a satisfactory price return are much brighter than at the time the association began operations last November.

In order to reap the benefits of the first year's efforts and to keep overhead on a satisfactory basis it is intended that efforts will be made to increase the membership to take care of the established trade during the period of low production.

FEDERATED P. T. A. HELD ITS FIRST MEETING

The Federated Council, Parent-Teacher Association held its first meeting of the new year, Wednesday, September 19 at the high school. There was a goodly number present, all the schools being represented. The personnel of the organization is considerably changed as nearly all the schools elected new presidents at their annual meeting last May. After the regular business was disposed of, the coming state convention was considered. This will convene at Auburn, October 9 to 12 inclusive, and several delegates are expected to represent the Kingston Parent-Teacher Associations. The council voted to send its president, Mrs. H. P. Dederick as its representative. The question of serving milk and cocoa to the school children was next discussed. Some of the clubs have partially formed their plans for the year's work and these were disclosed for the benefit of all. The meeting then adjourned.

NEGLECTING THEIR LANGUAGE

Younger Chinese Since the Revolution Show a Preference for English and French.

To judge from the numerous articles that are being written on China, its literature is not reaping great benefits from the revolution. In the first place, the Chinese language is being pushed more and more into the background. The younger generation no longer receives the training it once received in the Chinese "Classics," and band in hand with this goes their preference for foreign languages—English primarily, and then French, with a little German. It is, of course, impossible for a country to build up a body of national literature in a foreign language. Intellectually, however, China is making reassuring progress. Its three greatest political writers, all of whom have been active now for nearly a quarter of a century—Tschang-Schun-Kang, Kang-Yu-wei, and Liang-Kitschao—are as active as ever in their efforts to save the nation from the fate of India or Burma or Korea or Egypt or Poland.

New Ms. of St. John's Gospel.
Among the recent important discoveries of the archeologists, and to many the most important of all, is an ancient papyrus manuscript with one of the earliest examples of the Gospel of St. John. This was beautifully written in Coptic about 400 A. D., the date of the earliest copies of the Greek text that are known; it will have a deciding voice as to what was accepted as the authority in Egypt. It is reported that it varies all through from the known manuscripts in small details.

EPISCOPAL LOSS BY EARTHQUAKE

The original (embryo) building of the United States government in which Townsend Harris, first American minister to Japan, resided during the period when the empire was being opened to western civilization, was among the buildings destroyed by the Japanese earthquake. Advice received at Episcopal Church headquarters in New York say that when the tidal wave in the shape of a wall of water fifty feet high swept over the Tsukiji section of Tokio and wiped out St. Luke's International Hospital and half a dozen other Episcopal Church institutions, it carried away the ancient embassy building which had been in use for various purposes for almost seven centuries.

Originally the Shin Shu Buddhist Temple of Zempukoji (Shrine of Virtue and Happiness), which had been founded by the famous philosopher Icho, in the year 1232 A. D., the structure was almost constantly in use as a shrine until July 7, 1859, when Townsend Harris, accompanied by a company of American sailors from the United States ship Mississippi, raised the Stars and Stripes over the roof of the edifice and established there the first American embassy in Japan. Harris in the preceding January had been appointed minister to Japan by President Buchanan, after two years of gruelling work resulting finally in negotiating the first commercial treaty between Japan and the United States. This treaty opened up half a dozen Japanese ports to the commerce of the world and marked the beginning of Japan's membership in the sisterhood of nations. The treaty was signed in the building which has been destroyed by the earthquake. It followed by six years the famous visit of Commodore Perry in Japanese waters, and the appointment in 1857 of Townsend Harris as consul general to the empire.

From that time onward until Japan territorial rights were abolished in 1894, the American legation was located in this Buddhist Shrine, and the entire Tsukiji section, later to become one of the most populous wards in Japan, was given over to the uses of the foreign population of Tokio, then known as Yedo. In 1860, anti-Christian riots swept over Tokio, and the Japanese government requested all foreigners to move to Yokohama, where they safely could be better assured. Minister Harris declined to abandon his post.

"My duty is here," he said, "looking after the interests of my government."

He remained at the legation throughout the storm, notwithstanding a direct attack on the building, and the assassination of Henry Heusken, his secretary and interpreter, for whose death he later forced the Japanese government to pay an indemnity.

From 1890 to 1895, the old legation building was known to visitors in Tokio as the Metropole Hotel. Then it was taken over by a wealthy Japanese, who added two-thirds of the adjoining city block to the original ground which he turned into a park. In 1917, during a financial crisis in Tokio, this man went bankrupt and committed suicide; whereupon the Hypothetical Bank of Japan took over the property, and through the cooperation of Viscount Shirayama, president of the bank, became possessed of the entire block. Then once more, following these vicissitudes, the ancient Buddhist Temple was remodeled into a training school for nurses, pending the erection of the new St. Luke's which was under way at the time of the disaster. By this time practically all that was left of the original structure were several decorative cornerstones bearing the coat-of-arms of the United States, which were being preserved for use as the base for a giant flag pole which was to have been erected on the lawn of the new St. Luke's overlooking Tokio Bay.

35,000 HEAR RUTHERFORD LECTURE

"Armageddon at Hand," Declares
Head of Bible Students.

With street car transportation swamped, with roads and thoroughfares choked with traffic and hundreds and thousands of people coming from points as far as San Diego to hear the famous lecture, "Armageddon," given by Judge Rutherford, president of the International Bible Students' Association at the Coliseum Exposition Park, Sunday afternoon, a new record was established in Los Angeles for attendance at a public gathering.

By 2:30 o'clock, 35,000 people had fought their way along the traffic blocked roads and the overcrowded street cars and were gathered in the giant coliseum.

These were supplemented by the hundreds that waited in cars out in Exposition Park, where they were able to hear every word of the lecture by means of a speaker's device erected by the Western Electric Company for the purpose, above Judge Rutherford's head in the speaking stand.

Musical Program First.

The judge was preceded by a musical program which included fute solos by William E. Mullinger, followed by a number of selections by a quartet composed of Mrs. E. D. Sexton, H. H. Rehner, W. R. Mitchell and Mrs. Alice Ripper. Arthur Howlett, choir master, led the singing.

A Sabbath quietness hovered over the great audience as Judge Rutherford took the stand. By means of a radio device, his speech was broadcast over all parts of the county, and returns from Kansas City, parts of Texas and other states today indicate that the judge's audience reached over the entire United States.

To Revisit Old World.

The judge's lecture was based upon actual conditions, which he found upon a recent tour of Europe. Always a student of world events, the judge will again visit the nations of the old world within a few months, where he expects to gather material for future lectures and perhaps resolve his information into book form.

Judge Rutherford is conceded to be one of the best lecturers on public platforms today. He succeeded the late Pastor Russell, not only as president of the International Bible Students' Association, but in the hearts of his followers as well.

Outspoken and frank in his opinions, the judge makes all his issues clear, leaving no doubt in the minds of his hearers of his sincerity and his wisdom.

Ends Convention.

Because he left an intensive lecture campaign to fill the Los Angeles engagement, the judge will retire to his country home at Monrovia, where he will rest a few weeks before his next European venture.

With the Sunday lecture, the convention held by the International Bible Students' Association at Trinity Auditorium comes to an end.

The convention has attracted thousands from all parts of the country and has been pronounced as one of the most successful ever held by the association.

There is a full synopsis of Judge Rutherford's address:

"And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."—Revelation 16:16.

It becomes the duty of every Christian and every order-loving person to sound the alarm announcing the day of God's judgment and vengeance upon Christendom and pointing the people to the divine way of peace and salvation. The old world has ended and is in travail and distress. The greatest crisis of the ages is upon the nations of earth. Men who think are alive to the fact that the collapse of the old order is at hand. From some of these we quote:

"There is no settlement in Europe. Governments can do nothing. They are afraid to do anything, and they stand by and allow things to go from bad to worse. 1923 is worse than 1914."—Ramsey MacDonald, M. P.

New Chapter.

"A new chapter opens in the history of Europe and the world, with a climax of horror such as mankind has never yet witnessed."—Lloyd George.

"Airplanes, poison gas and hatred mixed together are spelling the doom of civilization. America is preparing for war on a scale so colossal that it has no parallel in the history of the world. Our civilization will perish unless we strive for international peace."—Frederick J. Libby.

"No man unless he is drunk with optimism can deny that the world is very sick, and it may be a sickness unto death."—Sir Philip Gibbs.

For this reason fear has taken hold upon the governing powers and is extending to all classes of people.

Why Fear and Distress?

Why do these conditions now exist? Jehovah, the great God of the universe, answers: "It is the day of the Lord's vengeance. 'Come near, ye nations, to hear, and hearken, ye people; * * * for the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations.'—Isaiah 34:1, 2, 8.

According to the Bible chronology Gentile times began 606 B. C., were to endure for 2,520 years, and ended August 1, 1914. During that period Satan has been the God of this world or order of society. The end of the world marks the beginning of the exercise of kingly authority by the Lord Jesus, the King of kings.

His disciples propounded to him the question: "How may we know when these things shall come to pass, and what will be the proof of thy presence and of the end of the world?" Jesus answered: "The nations will become angry and God's organization as a whole, arrayed against the Lord and his anointed, (Psalm 2:1, 3) 'Beast' is a symbol of world powers, the ruling factors, made up of big business, big politicians and an apostate clergy; while the 'false prophet' is a symbol of a system of religion claiming to represent the Lord, falsely representing him, and in fact representing the evil spirits, of whom Satan is the chief. Each one of these holds before the minds of the people false doctrines and false hopes.

Prepare War.

They boast of the only ability and wisdom to bring the desire of mankind, of peace and prosperity; while at the same time they evolve schemes to rob the people. They prepare war and appeal to the patriotism of the rank and file to induce them to go to war; while the false religionist preaches the young men into the trenches. The people are learning that they have been robbed, deceived, misled and ill-treated, and they are growing desperate. The Lord now present, the antitypical Gideon, is turning on the light, that the people may see the true situation.

In their desperation, the powers, the ruling factors, are plunging mankind into the great conflict in the hopes of saving the present evil order of society. Had the big business men refrained from exploiting the people, had big politicians faithfully represented them, had the ministers of the denominational churches faithfully preached the messages of truth, had all of these refrained from deceit and hypocrisy, this great conflict would have been avoided. In this they have failed, and God's day of judgment has come.

Speaking of the day now at hand, Jehovah said through his prophet Joel: "Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye nations, and gather yourselves together round about. . . . Let the nations be awakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat. . . . The Lord shall roar out of Zion, and the heavens (ecclesiastical) and the earth (organized society) shall shake; but the Lord will be the hope of his people."—Joel 3:11-16.

Trouble Predicted.

Again through Jeremiah he said: "Behold, evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind (time of trouble) shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth. And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth; they shall not be lamented neither gathered nor buried."—Jeremiah 25:32, 33.

The present order of things cannot survive the conflict for which the nations are preparing and to which they are rapidly rushing, because of the terrible instruments of destruction, W. L. Warden, of the London Mail, says: "The next war will last but a few days. I mean it literally. And in those few days, with the new air and gas attacks which have been planned by headquarters' staffs, London and Paris will be wiped out in a night." Jesus described that conflict thus: "Then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, nor ever shall be. And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved."—Matthew 24:21, 22.

Then What?

The tangible evidence indicates that the great conflict will be within the next two or three years and of short duration. The Scriptures indicate that the trouble will reach a climax in 1925 and quickly burn itself out. The prophets then indicated that those who have faith will cry unto the Lord and He will bring them out of the trouble and into their desired haven of rest. (Psalm 107:25-30.) The prophet Haggai states that following this great trouble the desire of the peoples will be realized. (Haggai 2:7) That desire is for life, liberty and happiness.

This great conflict will awaken the people to the fact that the Lord is here; that the kingdom of heaven has been established, for which he taught His followers to pray. Then shall follow times of restoration (Acts 3:19-24) Jesus states that for the elect's sake many will come through the time of trouble, and these shall be the first ones that will have the opportunity for life. He says further

What to Do.

Many will ask, Now what shall we do? God's prophet answers: "Before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, seek ye the Lord, all ye meek (teachable) of the earth. . . . seek righteousness, seek meekness; it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger."—Zephaniah 2:2-3.

The church was organized in purity to represent the Lord. But under the leadership of selfish and ambitious men, influenced by the great adversary, ecclesiasticism has degenerated, as now evidenced by the open fight between the fundamentalists and the modernists. (John 8:44) Our sympathies are with the fundamentalists. In the denominational churches, however, are multitudes of good, honest, order-loving people, who have hope for a better day. They have some faith in Jesus Christ as the Redeemer of mankind. They believe that he is the Son of God. They believe in the resurrection, and that the salvation of man depends upon the merit of Christ. They are sheep amongst wolves in the ecclesiastical system. The Lord loves them and is calling to them through his word: "Come out from amongst the wicked systems, that ye be not partakers of their sins and receive not of their plagues."—Revelation 18:4.

Fight Is On.

The time has come for truth to triumph. The fight is on to the end. It is a battle between right and wrong, between truth and error. The forces of error are led by Satan, the god of this world, acting through his visible governing factors, an apostate clergy and the principal of the flock, made up of big business men and big politicians who hold religion as a cloak of selfish uses. The forces of truth are led by Jesus Christ, the Messiah, now here.

In the name of Jesus Christ, the King of kings, we sound the alarm. We appeal to all those who have faith in God and in his Word, who believe that Jesus Christ is his beloved Son and the Savior of mankind, to separate themselves from the wicked systems, dominated by selfish men, and to take their stand upon the Lord's side, and doing this, receive the blessings of this kingdom which God has prepared for them. These are the millions now living that, becoming obedient to righteousness, shall never die, but live forever in happiness. —Advertisement.

D. & H. GENERALS HERE TOMORROW

This afternoon at the Fair grounds the Colonials are playing a double-header with the West New York club. Sunday another double-header will be staged. The D. & H. Generals, who have four out of six games with the local club, will be the attraction in a double-header, the first game starting at 3 o'clock. But few semi-pro teams in this section can boast of the edge that Manager Phelps' team has on the Schriekmen and this is the reason why the home club will be fighting so hard Sunday. Four pitchers were available for the week-end games, so a harvest is expected by the local management.

ALCOHOL MENACE WORSE IN N. Y.

Fifty Five of Each 1,000 Cases Treated in City Hospitals First Half of 1923 Due to Drink.

The New York newspaper this morning says: Statistics compiled by the Department of Public Welfare on prohibition made public Friday show that alcoholism is on the increase, and, according to Dr. John F. Fitzgerald, general medical superintendent of the department, is more of a menace today than since 1914.

Based on the reports of Dr. Fitzgerald and Dr. Walter H. Conley, medical superintendent of the Metropolitan Hospital, Commissioner of the Department of Public Welfare announced figures showing that during the first six months of this year 1,190 cases of alcoholism were treated in the hospitals under the jurisdiction of the department. As compared with the total number of patients treated, of which there were 24,636 during this period, fifty-five out of every 1,000 were alcoholics. Commissioner Conley declared the statistics showed that cases of alcoholism were increasing at an alarming rate, and were more violent and deadly than heretofore.

"When prohibition went into effect," said Dr. Fitzgerald in his report, "there was a marked slump in the number of alcoholics, due mainly to the fear of bad liquor and partly to the difficulty in getting it and high prices. The statistics show that hospital cases of alcoholism were at their lowest ebb in 1918-19, when only twenty-seven and twenty-eight out of every thousand patients were alcoholics. From 1919 on the increase has been very steady. Last year the percentage was more than double that of 1919. The slight decrease during the first six months of the year is due probably to the fact that the liquor is getting better."

It is an indisputable fact that liquor is easier to get and that it is of a much better quality than that obtainable heretofore since prohibition. This might argue against the theory that cases of alcoholism requiring hospital attention are on the increase were it not also a fact that men drink more today than they did before prohibition. Perhaps the sum total of their drinking is not as great as it was before prohibition, but they drink more at one time than they did."

The relation between alcoholism and drug addiction, according to Dr. Fitzgerald, is shown by the small number of drug addicts treated during the years when alcoholism was rampant and its rapid increase when prohibition set in and alcoholics were fewer in number. When good liquor is readily obtainable drug addiction is less prevalent, he said. He ventured the opinion that people who drink will not resort to drugs so long as they are able to get good liquor.

ELECTRIC WORKER IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

A charge of 2,300 volts of electricity passed through the body of Frank McDonald Thursday afternoon on a pole of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company near Newburgh, upon which he was working. He was immediately rushed to Nassau Hospital, Poughkeepsie, where an examination revealed he had sustained a bad burn on his face and a compound fracture of the right leg. The patient is considered in such a serious condition that an X-ray examination is impossible at this time. He is now being treated for electric shock and it is thought he has an even chance for recovery.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

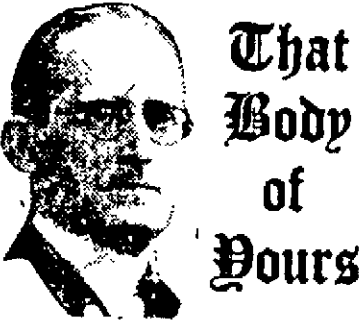

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Sept. 22.—Steadiness marked trading at the opening of the stock market today. Trading was fairly active with fractional gains well distributed throughout the list.

With nothing in the outside news that could be calculated to influence values one way or the other, prices were governed by conditions within the market itself. Trading was slow but a tendency to anticipate better things in the coming week was plainly visible. The market in general was steady with rails, oils, steels and industrials sharing in the advance. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

That Body of Yours

"THE NEED OF CHANGE."

A business friend of mine was criticizing a certain woman's club one day.

"Why," he said, "the time, money, and energy they spend for the amount of money they make for charity is simply ridiculous. If each one of them were to contribute a few dollars to the fund they would make more money, and not lose all that time and energy."

As a matter of fact his criticism is not often justified anyway. But he was forgetting a very vital point.

These women all come from homes, from homes where they are the guiding genius. If they do not do all the work of the household, they usually do a part of it. Some of course have a number of maids, but in no case do these club women escape home responsibility.

And what does this mean? Simply the daily, almost deadly routine. The care and supervision of all that goes to make home life, from the washing of dishes to presiding at a real dinner party.

All the little details that come up day after day, and every day. What am I trying to prove? Simply that a woman by engaging in club life to some extent is actually saving her very mind's health in many cases. The club offers a new field. There is a chance to help some cause. There are the business details of the ordinary club meeting, the debates more or less interesting and sometimes exciting, and then the more public affairs where thought and energy must be expended. Any physician who does special work on the mind will tell you that it is monotonous routine, that kills.

The dread loneliness of women on the farm and prairie is being made more bearable by the wireless.

That little touch of the outside world, of something different. And so the old saying "a change is as good as a rest" applies very appropriately to the modern housewife, whose daily routine needs a change quite frequently.

RUTH DESERVES IT, SAY YANK OFFICIALS OF PRIZE.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 22.—Officials of the New York Yankees declared today that the award of the American League trophy to Babe Ruth as the most valuable player to his club during the 1923 season was quite according to their expectations.

"I don't see how they could have done otherwise," declared Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the club. "His value to the Yankees was almost beyond estimation. I don't say the club couldn't have won without him, but it goes without saying that the 1923 race would have been much closer had Ruth been out of the game or with another club. I have always maintained that he was one of the greatest of the great. His record this season proves it."

GIANTS NEED FOUR GAMES TO WIN FLAG.

As a result of beating the Pirates in a double header yesterday, the Giants need to win only four of their remaining eight games to clinch the national league pennant even if the Reds win all of the games remaining on their schedule. If the Reds lose one game, the Giants will need only three victories. Two defeats for the Reds would mean that the Giants could win the pennant with two more triumphs.

They have one game more to play with the Pirates, two with the Reds, four with the Dodgers and one with the Braves. A postponed game with the Cardinals will not be played. The Yanks have already clinched the American League pennant.
